A FATAL QUARREL.

Charles Imler Killed By Homer Quarry.

MURDERER AT LARGE.

Particulars of Saturday Night's Tragedy at Woodbury—The Victim Was a Son of Frank Imler.

WOODBURY, November 11.—A farmer in the neighborhood of Woodbury took a load of apples to Altoona and returned Saturday afternoon, bringing with him several cases of beer and some whisky, which was distributed, and by 9 o'clock there was a drunken crowd. About this time Frank Imler, a farmer who lives about one mile from town, dropped into one of our grocery stores and went back to the lunch room, where Homer Quarry and several others were. Quarry remarked that this was private, but that Imler could come in if he could put up the price. A quarrel then began, in which a number to k part, and several blows were exchanged. Everything was quiet for a while, when Quarry and Imler again came to blows on the outside, but were separated and got about 40 feet apart when one of them said, "Now come on," whereupon several ran out to see what was up, when Quarry, who had armed himself with a club, began to strike right and left, hitting John Love, colored, and knocking Charles Imler down. The latter was removed to Dr. Stayer's office, when the physician and Dr. Nason made an examination and found that Imler's skull was fractured. They did all they could in the hope that they might save his life, but without avail, as the young man died Sunday morning.

Homer Quarry is a son of William Quarry, of this place, and is a fellow that has always been quarrelsome and bore a bad reputation. After he learned that he had probably dealt young Imler a fatal blow he rejoiced in what he had done and, with several beer bottles in his possession, started to the house where John Love was and asked to see him. When told that he could not see him, he remarked that he had killed one and he would do the same with John, if not tonight, then tomorrow.

The club he used was one that he had gotten ready several days before, when he was chopping wood at the house connected with the grocery, remarking to a young man that he got this club ready for some fellows. Before the people recovered their breath and the officers were ready to apprehend Quarry he escaped and has not been seen since. He is about 24 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches in height, has black hair and eyes and is slightly stooped. He has no upper teeth and stammers some while speaking.

It must be said to the credit of the Imlers that they had not been drinking and that they happened on the scene of confusion as they were on their way home, and that the quarreling and striking toward them was without provocation.

Charles Imler was aged 19 years, one month and 23 days. He was a son of Frank Imler and an excellent, industrious young man, being highly esteemed by his neighbors and associates. His funeral took place on Tuesday and was attended by a very large concourse of people. Rev. John L. Holsinger and Rev. John R. Stayer spoke from the pulpit and they were not sparing in their remarks upon the conduct of all the people and their exhortations have had a good influence in appeasing the excitement under which the community was laboring for the past three days.

Accidentally Killed

According to a despatch to the daily papers, on November 2 Thomas Williams, of Dudley, was accidentally killed. While out hunting he met a young friend, Bursey Williams, and the two began wrestling. During the tussle the gun was accidentally discharged, the contents striking young Williams, from the effects of which he died a few hours later. The deceased was about 16 years of age and resided with his mother a short distance from Dudley.

The Fighting Forty-Ninth.

Engineer H. C. Robison attended the reunion of the 49th R giment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, held at Lewistown on October 29 and 30. Mr. Robison was a member of this regiment, which did a great deal of fighting in the civil war. It had a total enrolment of 1,597 and of these 152 were killed, 51 mortally wounded, 403 wounded, 151 died, 29 were taken prisoners and 19 died in prison, a total of 805. The heaviest loss sustained by the regiment was at Spottsylvania on May 10, 1864, when, of 474 men engaged, the loss was 246. The engagements of this month were so disastrous that the regiment was reduced to 135 effective men.

Big Hunt In Progress

One of the big hunts of the season is in progress on the state reservation in Bedford county, on Martin's mountain, above Bean's Cove. Hundreds of gunners are watching crossings or driving deer. Some are camped along Evitt's mountain on the west side, others at other points. Deer are plentiful, as well as most other kinds of game. If some hunters are not shot for game it will be a wonder.—Cumberland Courier.

Thoughts for the Day.

The shadow of eternal wrongs drapes our lives and fills us with awe and a desire to pray. The light—electric now—of science will not scatter the shadow and cause us to know all we desire. The modern arc light only deepens and widens the shadow, for the brighter the light the darker will be the shadow it casts. So science today only deepens the mystery of the unknown by the light of the many things it has made known

How often we come to the Forks of the Road and find no sign board pointing the way we should take. Shall we do this, or that, or do nothing? Shall we advise the friend or be silent, neither making nor marring? Who shall decide? We must do it ourselves, for no one can decide for us—and eternity and its results may hang and hinge on the decision.

Life, however, is not a game of Blind Man's Buff wherein we are to blindly feel our way. Something directs—and we are led—and we do well to pray "Lead, Kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom, Lead, Thou, me on."

Yet you note that mankind has a weakness in their desire to be directed and others are willing to do the directing. Some men seek direction by the toss of a penny, or by casting lots—or what not. Some follow the fancy and whim of the moment. But men are to use their sense and faculties to determine their occupations, companions, residence and they may feel that they are led of God by so doing because God gave them their sense and faculties and their will, whereby to choose.

Time and tide come to all men though they do not wait for any man. The right wind will drive the vessel if it be ready—to its desired haven—or if not prepared—on the rocks. Accident does not enter as the controller of a man's life; and Chance does not hold the helm. Love is not a trade, a matter of barter, but an open secret seen and read of all men.

A woman shows her love but will not tell it; a man tells his love but will not show it. Shamefacedness holds them both, and yet what is more shrinking and self concealing than love? What so public and open to earth and sky?

Some men would die for the truth, but most men die because of its lack. For men, as a rule, do not love the truth. Falsehood is but candied or sugar-coated truth and so is sweeter: as compliments are sweeter than criticisms. Very few men say to their doctor "Tell me the whole plain truth," for they expect the most hopeful and best he can tell them.

'Pleasant things! tell me these,' is their wish, and the world applauds the telling of these things, saying, "You can catch more flies (and men) with the honey (of compliment) than with the acid and vinegar (of truth)." H. B. T.

Enjoyable Social Event.

FISHERTOWN, November 10.—The home of Simon L Hammaker, of East St. Clair township, was the scene of a merry making and feasting in honor of Mr. Hammaker's 36th birthday. Friends and relatives to the number of 31 thought to surprise him. Early in the morning Mr. Hammaker repaired to the corn field, unconscious of what was in the minds of his friends, and to make the deception more complete, his sister Carrie accompanied him to the field. About 10 o'clock a shout arose and Mr. Hammaker was at once informed that he was in the hands of a surprise party, consisting of the following persons. Joseph Boyer, C. E. Blackburn, wife and sons John and Ira, B. F. Lohr, wife and daughters Katie and Minnie, Charles Miller and wife, Sherman Hoover, wife and son Harold, Mrs. Kate Miller, Joseph Griffith and wife, G. C. Wisel and wife, Thomas Wolf, wife and daughter Rena, S. B. Whetstone and wife, W. F. Berkheimer and wife, Miss Ada Miller, S. A. Hammaker, wife and daughters Edith and Kathleen. The male portion of the company formed a ring around Mr. Hammaker and he was at once hoisted into the air amid the shouts and congratulations of all present. After spending a pleasant and agreeable day, all departed for their homes feeling "it was good to be there." BARNEY.

THE PANAMA AFFAIR.

The House Demands Correspondence on That Matter.

ELECTION AFTERMATH.

This Is a Time for Democratic Jubilation and Elation—A Victory for the Common People.

Special Correspondence of THE GAZETTE.

WASHINGTON, November 10.—The Fifty-eighth congress yesterday assembled in extra session under the president's call to enact legislation to make the Cuban reciprocity treaty effective. The house organized by electing Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, speaker. The house unanimously demanded yesterday afternoon the complete correspondence on the Panama affair. The resolution was introduced by Representative Hitt, of Illinois, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs. The introduction and passage of this resolution means, it is asserted, that every point in the events leading up to the secession of Panama and the hurried recognition of the new republic of Panama by the present administration will be made public and whatever scandal there may be in the matter will be laid bare. The Hitt resolution and its passage by the house was followed by a declaration from the Democratic minority of both the house and senate that they would demand an investigation. Senator Morgan, the opponent of the Panama canal route, has declared against the administration in its handling of Panama affairs, and has more than intimated that he would demand an investigation.

The election is over and the Democracy has much to congratulate itself for.

This is a time for Democratic jubilation and elation. In every state where the Democrats made the attempt they either defeated the Republicans or cut down the majority in such a manner as to give encouragement to every Democrat in the land. Only in the single state of Ohio were we defeated worse than we expected to be. No Democrat in the country expected Tom L. Johnson to be elected governor. He did not expect it himself. He was fighting for the legislature to defeat Mark Hanna for the United States senate. He made a gallant fight and with right principles. He preached the gospel of humanity to the people of his state, the gospel of the people's rights as against the rights of the corporation, and it is a gospel that must in the end prevail or the people not alone of his state but of the entire nation will have sacrificed their birthright on the altar of corporate greed. His defeat and the defeat of the ticket and the principles he represented must be attributed to the defection in the ranks of the Democratic party in Ohio and to the lavish use of money at the polls and before the election. Some day those people in the state of Ohio will see and know the truth and it will be a Democratic state. In the meantime the only thing those patriots in Ohio can do is to pick their flints and keep their powder dry. There will be another battle next year and the indications from the battle of the 3d of this month presage a glorious victory.

It is the consensus of Democratic opinion here among the clans who came to the assembling of the Fifty-eighth congress that the Democrats have much in the election at which to rejoice. We more than held our own in the state of Massachusetts; we kept our own in the state of Rhode Island by re-electing our governor; we carried the state of Maryland not only for the state ticket but for United States senator; we carried Kentucky by an increased majority which eternally puts the kibosh on Republican assassination in that state; we reduced the majority in the rock-ribbed Republican state of Iowa by at least 20,000, and we made a clean sweep of the great city of New York. The latter was a grand victory for more than one reason. It was a victory for the great common people, for home rule, for Democratic methods, and a defeat for hypocrisy, false pretense, the rule of the corporation and the aristocrat, a cold bath on the bootlicks and sycophants who whine about the knees of predatory wealth.

To witness an election in the greatest city in the nation, and especially when the people have won a great victory, is a sight never to be forgotten and a privilege. I was in New York and saw the thing. It far surpasses anything in the line of election excitement that I ever saw or ever expect to see. Imagine 150,000 people packed in the space covered by twenty acres, all gazing intently at the bulletin board, and when the news comes they have been hoping for, and waiting for, there is an explosion and pandemonium breaks loose and reigns supreme from that time on until tired nature refuses longer to submit. A sea of humanity and every man either yelling or blowing a fish horn, which is an invention of the devil, is a veritable Niagara of noise. That crowd was a volatile vortex and a vocal volcano. The people forming the crowd had been to the ballot-box earlier in the day, and they were rejoicing over the work they had accomplished. They had a good right to howl. They had that day stamped their feet on the necks of the rankest gang of rotten Republicans posing as reformers who ever worked the "Con" game on the honest people of any city in the country. Those people have themselves and their own ballots to thank for this escape from the grasp of cowards cringing to coin, but they have some agencies to thank for making them "wise" to the situation. It is the universal opinion in New York and in political circles here that had it not been for the papers controlled by that good Democrat and people's friend, William R. Hearst, the people never would have taken the interest in this election that they did and a great Democratic city would still have been under the control of Tom Platt and his Republican co-laborers and copartners in political crime. It is a noteworthy fact that every paper in the city of Greater New York, with the exception of the New York American, Evening Journal and Das Morgen Journal, owned and controlled by Mr. Hearst, were booming the so-called fusion ticket made up of rank Republicans and mugwump Democrats. They stormed and fought and lied vigorously from start to finish, but it seems that those newspapers owned by Mr. Hearst have more actual readers than all the others combined, for when they throw their votes for any candidate he wins. Six years ago Mr. Hearst's papers supported Van Wyck for mayor of New York, and he won. Two years ago the same papers fought Van Wyck for good cause, and he was defeated. Thus the people have come to the conclusion that the Hearst papers have some influence in the city of Greater New York, and they are right. The reason for this is not far to seek. Those papers are always on the side of the people and they are always sincere. C. A. E.

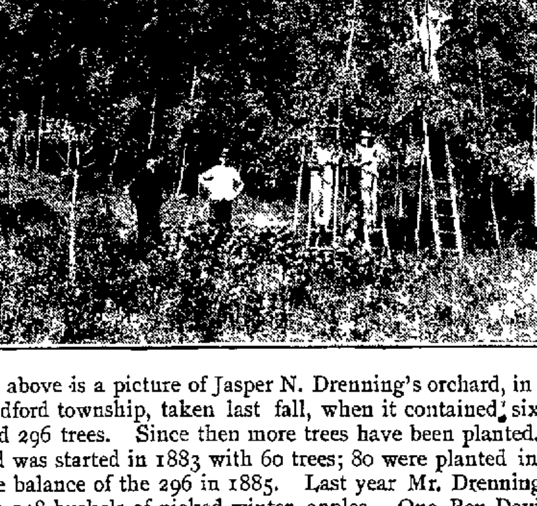
JASPER N. DRENNING'S APPLE ORCHARD.



THE above is a picture of Jasper N. Drenning's orchard, in South Bedford township, taken last fall, when it contained six acres and 296 trees. Since then more trees have been planted. The orchard was started in 1883 with 60 trees; 80 were planted in 1884 and the balance of the 296 in 1885. Last year Mr. Drenning marketed 1,048 bushels of picked winter apples. One Ben Davis tree produced 24 bushels and another 22 bushels; a York Imperial tree bore 20 bushels and another 19 bushels; 19 bushels of Baldwins were picked from one tree; from two Smoke House trees, grafted six years ago, 30 bushels were obtained. Besides these varieties there are Smith's Cider, Grimes' Golden, Albemarle Pippin, Red Astrakan, Yellow Transparent, Early Haylow and Grovenstein trees in Mr. Drenning's orchard. In addition to the winter apples he gathered 300 bushels of summer and fall apples and made 17 barrels of cider last year. Buyers who saw the crop last fall pronounced it the "finest lot of apples they ever saw." What Mr. Drenning believes to be his secret of success in orcharding is summed up in the following sentences: 1st—Careful pruning. 2d—Keeping the land in a high state of cultivation by hoed crops, such as corn, potatoes, etc., occasionally planting a crop of clover, using manure and mulch. 3d—Keeping trees free from borers, by cutting them out twice a year with a knife. For the past six years Mr. Drenning's orchard has produced good crops. The men in the above half-tone are Jasper N. Drenning, Policeman Daniel O'Shea, Charles Karns, Humphrey Drenning and George W. Kemp, of the Village Nurseries, Harnedsville, Pa.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The Executive Urges Reciprocity for Cuba.

The message of President Roosevelt urging the enactment of legislation making effective the reciprocity treaty with Cuba was read in both houses of congress on Tuesday. The text of the document is as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I have convened the congress that it may consider the legislation necessary to put into operation the commercial treaty with Cuba, which was ratified by the senate at its last session and subsequently by the Cuban government. I deem such legislation demanded not only by our interest but by our honor. We cannot with propriety abandon the course upon which we have so wisely embarked. When the acceptance of the Platt amendment was required from Cuba by the action of the congress of the United States this government thereby definitely committed itself to the policy of treating Cuba as occupying a unique position as regards this country. It was provided that when the island became a free and independent republic she should stand in such close relations with us as in certain respects to come within our system of international policy; and it necessarily followed that she must also to a certain degree become included within the lines of our economic policy. Situated as Cuba is it would not be possible for this country to permit the strategic abuse of the island by any foreign military power. It is for this reason that certain limitations have been imposed upon her financial policy, and that naval stations have been conceded by her to the United States. The negotiations as to the details of these naval stations are on the eve of completion. They are so situated as to prevent any idea that there is the intention ever to use them against Cuba or otherwise than for the protection of Cuba from the assaults of foreign foes, and for the better safeguarding of American interests in the waters south of us.

These interests have been largely increased by the consequences of the war with Spain and will be still further increased by the building of the Isthmian canal. They are both military and economic. The granting to us by Cuba of the naval stations above alluded to is of the utmost importance from a military stand-point, and is proof of the good faith with which Cuba is treating us. Cuba has made great progress since her independence was established. She is advancing steadily in every way. She already stands high among her sister republics of the new world. She is loyally observing her obligations to us, and she is entitled to like treatment by us.

The treaty submitted to you for approval secures to the United States economic advantages as great as those given to Cuba. Not an American interest is sacrificed. By the treaty a large Cuban market is secured to our producers. It is a market which lies at our doors, which is already large, which is capable of great expansion, and which is especially important to the development of our export trade. It would be indeed shortsighted for us to refuse to take advantage of such an opportunity, and to force Cuba into making arrangements with other countries to our disadvantage.

This reciprocity treaty stands by itself. It is demanded on considerations of broad national policy as well as by our economic interest. It will do harm to no industry. It will benefit many industries. It is in the interest of our people as a whole, both because of its importance from the broad stand-point of international policy and because economically it intimately concerns us to develop and secure the rich Cuban market for our farmers, artisans, merchants and manufacturers. Finally, it is desirable as a guaranty of the good faith of our nation towards her young sister republic of the south, whose welfare must ever be closely bound with ours. We gave her liberty. We are knit to her by memories of the blood and the courage of our soldiers who fought for her in war; by the memories of the wisdom and integrity of our administrators who served her in peace and who started her so well on the difficult path of self-government. We must help her onward and upward, and in helping her we shall help ourselves.

The foregoing considerations caused the negotiation of the treaty with Cuba and its ratification by the senate. They now with equal force support the legislation by the congress which by the terms of the treaty is necessary to render it operative. A failure to enact such legislation would come perilously near a repudiation of the pledged faith of the nation.

I transmit herewith the treaty, as amended by the senate and ratified by the Cuban government.

WHITE GETS NEW TRIAL.

Wrecker of Hyndman Bank to Go Before Jury Again

PITTSBURG, November 9.—George B. White, who was convicted in the United States district court last May for wrecking the National Bank of South Pennsylvania, at Hyndman, Pa., and of making false statements to the comptroller of the currency, will get a new trial. The opinion granting this privilege was filed today by Judge Joseph Buffington, who was the trial judge. In his opinion, Judge Buffington says:

"After careful consideration, we are of the opinion that the court erred in the trial of this case in admitting evidence of loans secured by George B. White, the defendant, from three different banks, and giving the stock of the Hyndman National bank as security. If, in these transactions, any fraud was committed upon the banks, it is not to be tried in this case. We are of the opinion that no such connection was shown between these transactions and the making of the alleged false statements of May 8, 1902, and November 25, 1902, charged in the indictment."

White is now in the Allegheny county jail, having been unable to get bail.

Was This Bill Paid Twice?

BEDFORD, PA., NOVEMBER 9.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—In 1899 and 1900 I did some work at the old jail for the county commissioners. My bill for the work was about $39 and the commissioners settled with me on December 18, 1900. I understand that payment for the work I did was subsequently made to another person. It would be in order for the commissioners to explain why they paid this bill the second time.

Thanksgiving Day.

Governor Pennypacker has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

In conformity with a custom so long regarded that it has become a law of conduct, and an expression of the will of the people, I, Samuel Whitaker Pennypacker, governor of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby set apart Thursday, November 26, as a day for giving thanks and praise to the Lord for His infinite goodness and mercy.

The dearth and scarcity which afflicted our forefathers He hath turned to plenty. He hath blessed the land so that it is fruitful and brings forth whatsoever is needful for the life of man. He hath saved us from the hands of our enemies and hath hitherto preserved us from all perils. He hath permitted no plague, pestilence or famine to destroy us. In good measure He hath delivered us from hatred, malice and uncharitableness. He hath so directed and prospered the consultations of our rulers that peace and happiness, truth and justice are established among us.

Let us then meet in our churches and places of worship and offer up our prayers for the maintenance of our health and prosperity and the increase of our virtue and piety under His guidance and care. And let us not forget to comfort the sick, to clothe the naked and to feed those who are in hunger and want.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state at the city of Harrisburg, this fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and three, and of the commonwealth the one hundred and twenty-eighth.

(Signed)

SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER.

Death of Frank Sleek.

The home of Thomas M. Sleek, of Kansas City, Mo., formerly of Pleasantville, this county, was made very sad recently by the death of the eldest son Frank. His death occurred on the 28 ult. at Ridgway, Col., whither he had gone two months previously in the hope of regaining his health. He was in the thirty-third year of his age and until a few months ago enjoyed robust health. After he went to Colorado his strength seemed to be returning rapidly, but his vitality, as it proved, was insufficient to withstand the severe cold with which he was seized a few days before his death. Frank had been employed at the Kansas City Paper House for the past thirteen years. His brothers Ross and Bruce are now traveling for the same firm. His remains were brought to Kansas City by his brother Bruce and interred in Forest Hill cemetery. The family have the sympathy of their many friends in Bedford county.

LAST WEEK'S ELECTIONS. The general result of last week's elections should encourage the Democrats throughout the Union. The remarkable victory of George Brinton McClellan in New York, the success of the Democratic gubernatorial candidates in Maryland, Kentucky, Rhode Island and the notable gains in other states indicate that the Democracy of the country is regaining its prestige and by the time the next presidential battle begins will enter the lists with its old-time confidence and strength and enthusiasm. Every Democrat should catch the spirit of the times and lose no opportunity to advance the interests of the organization that is the true champion of the people—the party that believes in equal rights for all and special privileges for none. From now on until the next national battle of the ballots is decided let the rank and file work faithfully for success. The verdict of the people on November 3 shows that they are dissatisfied with the present administration. It was a protest against the policy that fosters the tyrannical trusts; a rebuke to the robbers who have been helping themselves to the taxpayers' money; a condemnation of the tariff that is sorely oppressing the people—and has set in motion an irresistible tidal wave which will sweep those who are responsible for the present state of affairs to the ocean of oblivion.

THE WRONG TARGET. As the leader on its editorial page last week the beloved Inquirer had an eight-and-a-half inch article intended to prove that the Democrats are not capable of filling the county offices. In this ponderous tome the only argument presented to demonstrate the unfitness of the party of Jefferson to administer the affairs of the county economically and efficiently is that the COUNCILMEN OF BEDFORD BOROUGH ARE PAVING THE STREETS WITH CREEK GRAVEL, "THE EFFICIENCY OF WHICH IS TO FILL OUR RESIDENCES WITH SAND IN DRY WEATHER AND TO WASH AWAY THE FIRST HEAVY RAIN." Well, that is a pretty serious offence, our fellow-countrymen! Think of it! Any body of men who would intentionally bring about such a state of affairs surely are stupid. Just imagine your house filled with sand—from cellar to attic—in dining-room, parlor and kitchen; sand everywhere, in jelly, butter and jam; in mush, potatoes and meat; in fact, in everything you eat. All this in "dry weather." Besides, this creek gravel "washes away the first heavy rain." We wonder what it would do to light showers and the second, third, etc., heavy rains. As to the loose stones, they really are not so plentiful on our streets.

But to get back to the "burden" of the Inquirer's "song," because the borough dads have not taken the loose stones off the streets and are paving the streets with creek gravel the Democratic party is not competent to administer the affairs of the county economically and properly. What eloquence! What logic! What statesmanship! What nonsense!

But joking aside, if the author of the asinine article had taken the trouble to ascertain the facts in the matter at issue he would have learned that the Democratic councilmen have at all times given a good account of themselves, and, in the few years they have been in office, have done over twice as much work on the streets their predecessors did in the same time. With regard to the creek gravel they believe it will make a good foundation and is the cheapest they can get. It is the intention to cover the gravel with crushed stone. So it looks as if Mr. Inquirer was a little hasty and a little reckless. He suggests that the new crusher be used. If he had inquired about this machine he would have been informed that it has just been tested and will soon be breaking up the stones for the top dressing of the gravel covered streets. Council also has put down some good pavements and crossings and has ordered another carload of firebrick. It has notified the owners of properties that their pavements, if bad, must be repaired and if the people do not attend to the matter the borough fathers will have it done. If they want to, the citizens can purchase firebrick from council at cost. These are only a few facts to prove that the Democratic "borough dads" are wide awake and capable and that they are trying to do their duty.

If our neighbor wanted to be fair he should have looked up the record of the Democratic "dads," and he would have found that they have been earnestly advocating some of the very things the Inquirer has been championing. There are other sins of omission chargeable to the writer of the editorial in question, but we have already taken up more space than we intended to use and, besides, even if the Inquirer could prove that the Democratic councilmen were as bad as the "little girl with the curl in the middle of her forehead," that would have nothing in the world to do with the ability of the Democratic party to fill the county offices. Our friend is aiming at the wrong target. When he shoots mark again he should go outside of the borough—it's against an ordinance to use firearms within the limits of the town.

THE opening guns in the campaign of 1904 were fired last week and the sound was heard throughout the nation.

IF the Democrats of the country are wise they will take advantage of the victories won last week to carry their standard forward until, in 1904, it rests upon the ramparts of the enemy.

EVERY Democrat of Bedford county should heed the lesson of last week's political conflict and vote at all elections. If every Democratic vote in the county is polled the party will win.

The traveling representative of the Regal Shoe—the famous $6.00 shoe for $3 50—will be at the Bedford House on Saturday, November 14.

Millennium in 1912.

The statement is made by a prominent divine in the west that the millennium will arrive in the year 1912, and bases his claim on the prophecies of the Bible. Whether his prophecy is correct or not, time alone will tell, but in the meantime we should make the most out of our lives, and the first essential to this is good health. A sickly person cannot enjoy life because he lacks the vigor and vitality necessary for such enjoyment, and consequently always feels down-hearted and depressed. It was for such persons that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first introduced fifty years ago, and many persons to-day can ascribe their good health to its use. It positively cures indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and liver and kidney troubles. Don't fail to try it.

DAVID'S TRUST IN GOD. Psalm 23.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." Psalm 23:1

The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want. In pastures of tender grass He causeth me to lie down; beside still waters He leadeth me; My soul He refresheth; He guideth me in the tracks of righteousness for the sake of His name.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will not fear evil; for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff—they indeed comfort me. Thou preparest before me a table in the presence of my assailants; Thou annointest my head with oil; my cup floweth over.

Surely, only goodness and kindness shall follow me all the days of my life; and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord to the utmost length of days.

Thou wilt let me know the path of life; fullness of joy is in Thy presence; pleasures are at Thy right hand for evermore. As for me, in righteousness shall I behold Thy face; I shall be satisfied, when I awake with Thy likeness.

O, Lord, because of Thy strength will the king rejoice; and through Thy salvation how greatly will he be glad. The longing of his heart hast Thou given him and the request of his lips hast Thou not witholden. For Thou meetest him unasked with the blessings of happiness; Thou settest on his head a crown of pure gold.

Life hath He asked of Thee, Thou gavest it to him, length of days for ever and ever. Great is his honor through Thy help: glory and majesty Thou layest upon him. For Thou appointest him to be a blessing forever: Thou makest him glad with joy from Thy presence.

For the king trusteth in the Lord; and through the kindness of the Most High shall he not be moved. Thy hand will reach all Thy enemies; Thy right hand will reach all those that hate Thee. Thou wilt render them as a fiery oven at the time of Thy anger: the Lord in His wrath will destroy them and a fire will devour them.

Behold, God putteth no trust in His saints; yes, the heavens are not clean in His sight. How much more abominable and filthy is man, which drinketh iniquity like water. Blessed is the man that maketh the Lord his trust; leave not my soul destitute.

As for God, His way is perfect; the word of the Lord is tried. He is a buckler to all those who trust in Him. For who is God save the Lord? Or who is a rock save our God? It is God who girdeth me with strength and maketh my way perfect.

What time I am afraid, I will trust in Thee. In God I will praise His word, in God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me. O, how great is Thy goodness, which Thou hast laid up for them that fear Thee; which Thou hast wrought for them that trust in Thee before the sons of men.

The Lord redeemeth the souls of His servants: and none of them that trust in Him shall be desolate. But it is good for me to draw near to God. I have put my trust in the Lord God, that I may declare all Thy works. He only is my rock and my salvation; He is my defense; I shall not be greatly moved. Hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise Him, Who is the health of my countenance and my God.

AWFUL LOSS OF LIFE.

Railroads, Automobiles and Fires Responsible for Many Deaths This Fall—Sad Fate of Mrs. Booth-Tucker.

Special Correspondence of THE GAZETTE.

NEW YORK, November 10.—The adage is an old one, that whatever we get in this world we have to pay for. The close of this autumnal season will be marked for years by the frightful loss of life from railroads, automobiles and fires. A most pathetic death was that of a little girl scarcely seven years old. She was playing with several companions, joyously singing "Ring around a rosy" about a large bonfire, as if they were celebrating a political victory. She stepped too close to the fire and in an instant was enveloped in flames; all the boys but one fled. That one endeavored to quench the fire and was severely burned before he gave up his heroic act. Seeing a policeman approaching and fearing he might be accused of pushing the child into the fire, he, too, ran away, leaving the little girl alone. The policeman could but partially succeed in saving the child from being burned to death then and there. When the child was taken, by ambulance, to the hospital it was too late, for death claimed its victim the following night. It's a little story, but where are words to picture the agony of the family which was left childless? In the next column is an account of fifteen killed and fifty wounded in a railroad accident which might have been avoided by ordinary care. The passengers were mostly men interested in the game of football, on their way to witness one of the prize games of the season. On the field flags were flying, music was playing, everything was joyous and the friends of those who were expected were watching with eager eyes for their coming. Truly, "in the midst of life we are in death." Never was axiom truer, but how soon these dreadful accidents are forgotten.

One of the most sorrowing tales was the death of Mrs. Booth-Tucker, one of the Salvation Army saints, a woman who was one of the chief examples of the Salvation Army's work; she was of the original band to arrive in this country and her work was in the slums among that class of lost sheep whom the priest and the Levite had passed by. No respectable church admits the sinners that claimed this woman's service; they were foul of person, evil of language, their criminal vocabulary not understood by the outside world. There is something almost horrible in the idea of sending four or five pure young girls to make a home among drunkards, vagabonds and thieves, armed with nothing but the promises of God, telling of a home beyond the stars, where sin is purified by the blood of the Redeemer, and one might find a resting place at last. When the angel of death snapped the thread of life, the work of this Salvation saint had begun to make itself manifest. When she was born her father had just commenced his Salvation labor in England. Most of the work lay between White Chapel and St. John's. The inhabitants had a language of their own, if it can be so called; incomprehensible outside, it was well understood by the denizens of Hell's Kitchen. It was one vast ocean of iniquity; little boys on the street playing marbles cursed in an idiom which made the passersby tremble as they heard it and the blasphemy, thank God, had no parallel in our language. Amidst such things Mrs. Booth-Tucker first saw light. One would think that an innocent girl would have been afraid to enter into such a neighborhood and company, but fear has no place in the Salvation Army's lexicon, and from her childhood she moved among that evil company as if she bore a charmed life. Thousands, in the years that followed, who came to ridicule the faith she preached, remained to pray, and in time became the most elequent apostles of the old story of Salvation. Mrs. Booth-Tucker was a woman of charming presence, steady and upright character and strong intellectual and physical force. She seemed to have realized the character we have of Joan-of-Arc, being brave as Palladium and pure as any saint who has earned the right of canonization. She came to this country young and strong and firm in the belief of the Salvation Army's religion, and it was not long before she received invitations from the wealthy citizens to call and tell them of her religion, and on leaving them she often found checks and gold pieces in her hand. In our courts, where she expected to meet nothing but ridicule instead of justice, she soon experienced respect and consideration. She could walk through a crowd of street arabs and wretched outcast tramps, and many of them would remove their hats and caps as she passed. It was a mighty victory, when even Christian ministers, who laughed at the beating of the tambourines and the blowing of the horns, extended to them Christian tolerance and invited her to speak from their altars. Then came that unfortunate difference between Ballington Booth and his father. His father desired him to go to India. Ballington Booth wished to stop in the neighborhood of New York to enjoy the society of friends he had made and realize the spiritual harvest among the sinners he had saved. Ballington Booth's father, knowing the intellectual power of his youngest child, Mrs. Booth-Tucker, sent her and her husband to America to bring him into the fold; but he had founded a new organization known as the "Volunteers," and from then to the present time their roads to Salvation divided.

Last week Mrs. Booth-Tucker was killed in a railroad accident and no society engaged in gospel advancement ever suffered a severer loss. The scalding tears that fell among her worshipers were evidences of earthly grief that would not be controlled, though they knew that the gates of gold and pearl were ajar to admit her to the joys and glories of a promised land. When the news of her death reached her husband, strong as he was in the faith in the providence of God, he dropped to the floor as if he had been shot and now his main hope is to join her in the delights of the hereafter. The body lay in royal state at Carnegie Hall, where a memorial service was held.

It is hardly any use to attempt to prophesy as to the outcome of the political situation of the world; while we admire the pluck of a nation like Japan, defying the powerful empire of Russia, we may question the judgment as far as the safety of the nation is concerned. It is said that Japan looks toward Great Britain in the strife, if strife should come, and, if we look around for reasons, the solution of the questions impending would make it appear that all the great powers of Europe, and possibly Asia, would be drawn into the strife. But the Russian Bear does not seem to care a pin whether they combine or not; he sends 75,000 men to Manchuria; they guard the places that Russia already has and inform the powers at Pekin that it will not be convenient to move until next year. The question then arises, "Will he be ready to move at that time?" If we are to judge the future by the past, the conviction is forced upon us that the Russian has gone to Manchuria to stay. It is an old maxim that every advance that humanity makes is paid for with human lives.

The great subway of New York, now being constructed, is no exception to the law which has marked every footstep of man to a higher civilization. The other night the watch working in the tunnel, then in the deepest part of its course, was startled by an avalanche quickly following a blast that brought down hundreds of tons of rock and dirt; instantly killing 13 men, wounding many more and disabling half the men employed. It was a fearful sight and for hours the cries could be heard of those who were partially burned but apparently beyond the reach of human aid. As soon as the alarm could be sounded ambulances were on hand filled with hospital hands and doctors to render needed aid. In one place an Italian was found with his leg crushed between two rocks. The only chance for life was to amputate the limb, and there, in the gloom of the awful scene, the doctor removed the leg, which was almost crushed to a pulp. It was a frightfully weird picture. There were several cases where the workmen were buried up to their necks but could still speak faintly; in those cases the doctors could only alleviate the agony of the sufferers, to whom death was one of the greatest blessings of the Almighty. No accident so terrible has occurred since this great work was begun, and let us hope this will be the last.

The incarnation of the "Prophet Elijah" has been neither comfortable nor profitable. He did not have, like his ancient namesake, a chariot of fire awaiting his ascension, but the boys made it exceedingly warm for him, nevertheless. While he brought with him a magnificent palace car, with everything desirable to make life happy, it became evident that money was getting scarcer, for many of them were very hungry and some, it was said, without lodgings. I hardly understand how they could be, for the great hall where their meetings were held would have given shelter to many thousands. He paid for that hall and had the right to its use for a week at least. It was an interesting day when they came to the healing; the sick, the lame and the blind came forward to be healed. It is said, I don't know how truly, that Dowie demanded that they should become freeholders in Zion City before the cures should become effective. There were some who came without ready cash, but their cases were referred to one of Dowie's subordinates in the sweet by and by. It seems as if a general stampede was taking place in Dowie's congregation. The glorious triumph which he anticipated has not been realized and the splendid welcome to which he looked forward is composed of visions such as night dreams are made of. Three carloads departed just after daybreak, for which no breakfast was provided, and the hungry travelers were sighing for the flesh pots of Zion City. As far as they were concerned, the abundance of New York bore no comparison with the loaded tables in their homes in Zion City. "Elijah" told them to be patient, and reminded them that the Lord provided for the Jews in the wilderness and He would not forget them on their way home. The prophet himself showed no signs of starvation and still retained that comfortable rotundity which made his frock coat fit like an eel skin.

In connection with the betterment of financial matters, we find hundreds of gentlemen showing us a road to fortune and the comforts of life. I often think it is wonderful to see them giving away the opportunities to get rich, when they might keep them for themselves. But a change is taking place which none can fail to realize. No less than a dozen trusts have collapsed in the last week or two, and the shaking up of Mr. Schwab is one of the ominous signs of the financial market. Mr. Schwab receives $10,000,000 and he locks it up in his safe like a sensible man; he does not water it, he does not cultivate it, but when he opens the door of his safe to oblige a friend who needs money, he finds that it has increased nearly five millions. Now how was that done? "Hocus Pocus! Raddle, Riddle, Re!" I give it up. You had better ask Schwab. Good-by!

New Witmark Music.

M. Witmark & Sons have added the following musical gems to their stock: "The Proud Prince," Valse lente, by Manuel Klein, the composer of "Mr. Pickwick." This number was written for and played during E. H. Sothern's magnificent production of "The Proud Prince," with great success.

"Yesterthoughts," by Victor Herbert, one of the most popular compositions of this distinguished composer. It is a dreamy reverie eminently attractive and pianistic.

"Laces and Graces," a dainty little novelty by John W. Bratton & Gustav Salzer. It is said to rival in charm Mr. Bratton's "In a Cosy Corner."

"The Smile that Won't Come Off," Nat M. Wills, the comedian, is making a big hit in "The Son of Rest," with this funny song by Standish & Silberberg.

"Just For To-night," an impassioned love song by F. O. French; used by concert singers all over the country.

"The Mermaid of The Nile," an oriental intermezzo by Silvio Hein, promises big as a popular novelty.

Mr. L. M. Rinehart will be in this city to shake hands with his many friends and to renew acquaintances. He will be registered at the Bedford House and will remain over Saturday, November 14th.

Mr. Rinehart is connected with the Regal Shoe Company as their traveling representative, and has with him a complete line of fall styles. He is taking orders for Regal Shoes for future delivery by mail.

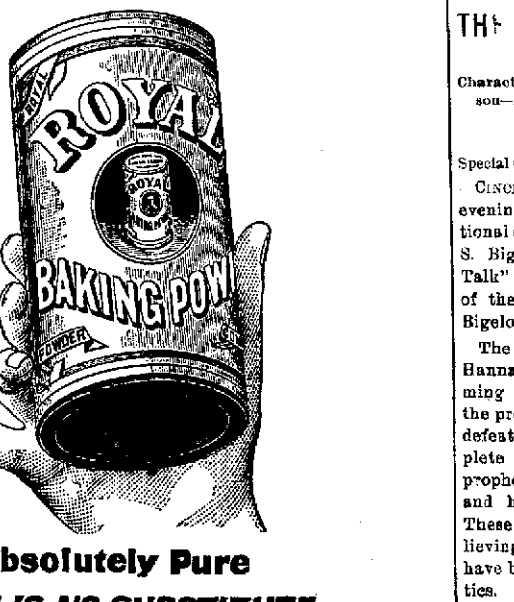
THE OLD RELIABLE



Absolutely Pure

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

AFTER ELECTION TALK

By Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, of Cincinnati.

THE RESULT IN OHIO.

Characteristic Message from Mayor Johnson—Hearts that Know the Truth Are Like the Stars.

Special Correspondence of THE GAZETTE.

CINCINNATI, November 9.—Yesterday evening at the Vine Street Congregational church the pastor, Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, gave an "After Election Talk" in which he discussed the lessons of the recent Ohio campaign. Mr. Bigelow said in part:

The election in Ohio is over. Senator Hanna's endorsement was so overwhelming as to make his nomination for the presidency the logic of events. The defeat of Mayor Johnson was so complete and decisive as to inspire the prophecy of his enemies that Johnson and his issues are buried forever. These enemies may be right in believing that the mayor and his cause have been eliminated from Ohio politics. But until the mayor himself is convinced of the fact, they are not likely to get the full benefit of his demise.

At midnight, after the election, I received a long distance message from the defeated candidate. There was the same happy ring to his voice. There was that never-failing optimism for which those who know him love him: "Give the friends my love and tell them that the next fight will begin tomorrow." Those who are singing requiems over his political grave do not know the man nor the principles which guide him. Senator Hanna declared on the stump that he was a man of "morbid ambition." I know he is a man who holds certain political principles in his heart with all the force of religious conviction. It is no more possible for him to acknowledge defeat for those principles than it would have been for Garrison to have given up the struggle for abolition.

It is not likely that Senator Hanna would dissent from Mayor Johnson's explanation of the result. Senator Hanna in his canvass repeated this declaration: "The result of the election in Ohio this fall will absolutely and beyond question of a doubt determine whether the present condition of prosperity in this country is to continue or not." Mayor Johnson says it was this kind of talk, coming from a man who could speak with authority as one of the "captains of industry," and coming at a time when there was almost universal dread of an approaching panic, that led many to ignore local issues in order to prevent the shock which might come through the defeat of a man so prominent in the national councils.

This is an explanation not at all uncomplimentary to Senator Hanna and, if it is correct, it justifies Mayor Johnson's hope for next year, which he expressed in the following declaration: "The ultimate success of the principles of the Democratic platforms is but postponed by this defeat and I urge the people of Ohio to begin now the campaign for the election of the next legislature, the selection of which will not involve the election of a United States senator or any other national question, but which can be chosen with reference to the questions of home rule and just taxation in which an overwhelming majority of the people of Ohio now believe."

On the Democratic side, it was a "penniless" campaign. On the Republican side, nothing was left undone which money could do. The last candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket spent $10,000 in Cincinnati. Mayor Johnson did not give a penny to the Cincinnati organization. That the use of money would have brought out a large vote, there is no question. That Mayor Johnson could have afforded to have spent the money, there is no doubt.

But he says that if the power of money is to be relied on in elections no victories can ever be won by the people, for privilege and monopoly can always contribute the largest campaign fund. By the use of money in politics temporary gains may be made. But permanent victories cannot be purchased. They come only through the aroused sentiment and the changed thought of the masses. If Mr. Johnson's ambition had been to become governor, he suffered defeat. If his ambition was to do an educational work certain of bearing fruit in the future, he has not been defeated in his purpose; on the contrary, he has succeeded magnificently. Mayor Johnson believes it is better to make ten converts to a just cause than to get a thousand unreliable votes by the customary methods. The cynicism of the public is so great that many will not believe it possible that any man in politics will do as he has done, namely, sacrifice his hope of a personal victory for the nobler ambition of advancing among thoughtful men the truth which he believes. The man who takes this course in politics will have to look for his reward, very often, to the silent approval of his conscience, while his enemies jubilate with the blare of horns. But he who believes in the power of truth and the teachableness of the people can well afford to wait; patient in the face of passing defeat and happy in the confidence of final and abiding victory.

To those who, with a mighty truth in their hearts, can be discouraged by adverse majorities, forgetting both the fickleness of the multitude and the endurance of the truth, the following parallel may be instructive:

In October, 1903, Mark Hanna said: "The insidious doctrine championed by Henry George is as venomous as the fangs of a snake."

In May, 1850, James Gordon Bennett said: "Never in the time of the French revolution and blasphemous atheism, was there more malevolence and unblushing wickedness avowed than by this same (William Lloyd) Garrison."

Within two years from the date of Gordon's utterance the name of the then dominant Whig party was blotted from the pages of American history and with the largest electoral vote ever cast for a president, the slave party returned to power. The voice of the multitude was Gordon's. But the voice of God was Garrison's. Within thirteen years the voice of the people became the voice of God and Lincoln in his immortal proclamation gave effect to the teachings of Garrison.

The generation that has been on the eve of great changes has never been conscious of it. The triumph of abolition did not seem more preposterous to Gordon than the triumph of the Single Tax now seems to Hanna in the flush of his victory.

Hanna is the Gordon, George is the Garrison, and Johnson is the Lincoln of the battle that is now on for industrial freedom. Hanna stands for the ideas that are dominant; Johnson for the truths that are vital. Hearts that know the truth are like the stars that hold serenely to their course unmindful of the changing clouds.

Like Finding Money.

F. W. Jordan Offers Popular Medicine at Half-Price.

F. W. Jordan, the popular druggist, is making an offer that is just like finding money, for he is selling a regular 50 cent bottle of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half-price. In addition to this large discount he agrees to return the money to any purchaser whom the specific does not cure.

It is quite unusual to be able to buy fifty cent pieces for a quarter, but that is what this offer really means, for it is only recently, through the solicitation of Druggist Jordan, that this medicine could be bought for less than fifty cents. He urged the proprietors to allow him to sell it at this reduced price for a little while, agreeing to sell a certain amount. The result has justified his good judgment, for the sale has been something remarkable.

Anyone who suffers with headache, dyspepsia, dizziness, sour stomach, specks before the eyes, or any liver trouble, should take advantage of this opportunity, for Dr. Howard's specific will cure all these troubles. But if by any chance it should not, Mr. Jordan will return your money.

The specific is very pleasant to take, coming in the form of small granules, and there are sixty doses in every package. It is especially convenient when traveling, and no one should start on a journey without a bottle of this reliable medicine.

Thanksgiving Proclaimed.

The president has issued the annual proclamation setting apart a day for thanksgiving. It follows:

"The season is at hand when, according to the custom of our people, it falls upon the president to appoint a day of praise and thanksgiving to God. During the past year the Lord has dealt bountifully with us, giving us peace at home and abroad and the chance for our citizens to work for their welfare unhindered by war, famine or plague. It behooves us not only to rejoice greatly because of what has been given us, but to accept it with solemn sense of responsibility, realizing that under heaven it rests with us ourselves to show that we are worthy to use aright well that which has been entrusted to our care.

"In no other place has the experiment of government of the people by the people and for the people been tried on so vast a scale as here in our own country in the opening years of the twentieth century. Failure would not only be a dreadful thing for us, but a dreadful thing for all mankind, because it would mean loss of hope for all who believe in the power and the righteousness of liberty. Therefore, in thanking God for the mercies extended to us in the past, we beseech Him that He may not withhold them in the future, and that we may be inspired to work steadfastly for good, and against all the forces of evil, public and private. We pray for strength and light, so that in the coming years we may with cleanliness, fearlessness and wisdom, do our allotted work on the earth in such manner as to show that we are not altogether unworthy of the blessings we have received

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving, Thursday, the twenty-sixth of the coming November, and do recommend that throughout the land people cease from their occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks unto Almighty God for His manifold mercies."

TO MOW DOWN YANKEES

The Chain Shot Cannon That Was Invented to Accomplish It

A double barreled cannon designed to sweep away ... solutions ... war ... from ...

Immediately ... was started an iron work ... Gilleland ... foundries ... a cannon with two barrels which should be more effective than a dozen of the usual kind The death dealing invention was to be charged with iron balls of a nonexplosive nature which was to be attached a long stout chain so that when the two barrels were fired simultaneously the balls and chain would mow down men by companies

The cannon was cast When it was entirely finished the inventor invited a number of his friends to a pine thicket on a hill on the outskirts of the city to see it work The double barreled thing was placed in position on the hillside and a heavy charge of powder rammed home in each barrel and the chained balls loaded on top of this The inventor's friends kept at a safe distance and he applied the fuse One charge of powder and ball went off but the other didn't As the heavy ball shot out it carried with it the chain to the full length ripping and cavorting around over and under the pine saplings rocks and mud tearing up small trees and earth and finally came circling back to the cannon which held the other ball with chain attached The inventor was struck by one arm by the ball now nearly spent and knocked senseless while friends feared to go near supposing that the other barrel might take a notion to discharge It was some time before the discharged ball lay motionless near the upturned cannon The inventor's arm was shattered making amputation necessary

This was the first and last trial of the cannon which was to mow down the Yankees Mr Gilleland lost hope and interest with his arm and the cannon was permitted to remain on the hill for many months but was finally carried into the city where for years it did most effective duty in celebrating elections and Christmas day By and by the old death dealer was missed from its place near the old city hall and no one seemed to know what had become of it Finally after diligent search it was found in a junk shop From this place it was resurrected and the city council made an appropriation sufficient to have it mounted and placed near the Confederate monument immediately opposite the government building

FANCIES OF STUDENTS.

The Young Medico Who Thought He Was Doomed to Paralysis

"For the first year or two a man studies medicine said a young physician he has every disease he learns about In my day we had a man among us who felt sure he was going to be paralyzed He was healthy as the next man but that seemed to him to make his disease more insidious He used to sit with his legs crossed and hit his knee to see if his reflexes were all right Every time he failed to hit the right spot he would look down at his motionless foot and say

Boys this is awful

He used to stand up put his heels together and shut his eyes to see if he'd stagger And he always declared he did and then he'd look green around the gills and sigh till even the fellow who knew he hadn't the disease got tired of it ... and nothing but paralysis was on the man's mind and he reckoned on being stricken at any time When he was in his room he wore a pair of slippers—the kind you can walk into and out stooping and it was his habit to leave things just wherever he happened to step out of them One night when he had gone to bed somewhat the worse for the evening's merriment two of us who roomed next door stepped in and tacked his slippers to the floor About 8 o'clock next morning we were startled by a blood curdling yell from him We rushed in There he stood just as he had stepped out of bed his feet in his slippers He pointed to them with a trembling finger and then turned toward us a face of utter despair

Boys said he thickly 'boys look at my feet I can't move them I can't walk a step Oh Lord it has come at last!' "—London Tit Bits

In a certain village not very long ago a benevolent doctor offered to give a thermometer to every cottage carefully explaining its use Soon after their arrival a district visitor entered one house where the new thermometer hung proudly in the middle of the room dangling at the end of a string The visitor complimented the owner upon it and inquired if she remembered the instructions

Ye that I do,' was the reply "I hangs un there and I watches un until 'e gets above 60 '

'Quite right Mrs ——" said the lady much pleased that the directions given had taken root. "And what do you do when it gets above 60?"

"Why then was the unlooked for answer I takes un down from the nail and puts un out in the garden and cools un down a bit!'—London Tit Bits

POSTAGE STAMPS.

The Wasted Ones Net Uncle Sam Over a Million a Year

An experienced clerk in a branch post office uptown says that Uncle Sam is in pocket every year more than $1 000 000 by purchase of postage stamps which never are used

"How many stamps," he says, "do you lose through carrying them carelessly in your pockets and fishing them out again glued together and useless? How many do you put in a corner of your pocketbook finding them again months later looking like anything but postage stamps? Of course nobody ever thinks of sending such stamps in for redemption Suppose the waste I am speaking of averaged 20 cents annually for each business man. The total would be enormous

"Hot weather was a great revenue maker for the government before the little oiled books came in, but many persons lose their books, and the average is about the same Some persons actually come back to the stamp window and ask if lost stamp books can be traced like bank books Another way in which Uncle Sam gains is through tradesmen sending out letters inclosing stamped addressed envelopes for replies which in the majority of cases are never used

Some business houses collect such envelopes and redeem them, but few take the trouble to do this Think of the thousands of return postal cards, too that are never used Lots of persons are careless of putting stamps on letters or papers and they fall off Then the matter is held up for double postage on the other end of the line.

"A great many persons put on too much postage They slap two two-cent stamps on a letter that would have gone for 2 cents It is amazing how little information usually well informed persons have about different classes of mail matter The pay for it too and pay well The beauty of our postal system is that the government gets the benefit of all mistakes" —New York Press

SINGS ITS DEATH SONG.

A Peculiar Bird Found In the Jungles of South America.

There is a queer bird in the jungles of northern South America which is called the "pauji' by the natives, but is known to science as the galeated curasson It is chiefly remarkable because it sings its own death song

It does not really sing, but makes a deep humming noise which sounds very much like the Spanish words 'El muerto esta aqui" (the corpse lies here).

'It is while uttering this lugubrious chant," said a South American traveler "that the 'pauji usually meets its death, for the hunter can then easily track it to its retreat and it falls a victim as the Indians say, to its own death song"

If the 'pauji' gets suspicious it immediately ceases humming and that is a sure indication to the hunter that the bird has seen him or scents danger In such a case the only thing for the sportsman to do is to remain perfectly still The bird may become reassured after waiting awhile and again begin to call ' The corpse lies here" It can then be cautiously approached and killed

If it is only wounded the "pauji usually escapes though it cannot fly much better than the ordinary domestic fowl It is very fleet of foot and will outrun the hunter until it is lost in the dense undergrowth of the jungle

In the mating season the male 'pauji" is the most pugnacious of birds and will fight its own kind whenever it meets them Often the fight ends in the annihilation of both combatants

How Japs Play Ken

In its most widely practiced form the basis of the Japanese game of ken is that the fully outstretched hand signifies paper the fully closed hand a stone and two fingers alone extended the rest being closed, scissors Each of the players, counting one, two, three throws out his hand at the moment of pronouncing three, and the one whose manual symbol is superior to that of the others, according to the theory of the game, wins the trial

Superiority is determined on the hypothesis that whereas scissors can not cut a stone they can cut paper, and whereas paper is cut by scissors it can wrap up a stone Consequently scissors is inferior to stone, but conquers paper, stone is inferior to paper, but conquers scissors and paper is inferior to scissors but conquers stone There are innumerable varieties of the game, for it is not a mere method of determining a dispute or priority, and they are constantly added to by ingenious young ladies the dancing girl class especially who play it with exquisite grace and judicious enhancement of beautiful hands and arms—Tuam Mail

The Twelve Jurymen

A prisoner is tried by twelve of his fellow countrymen This custom is a thousand years old and we get it from the Vikings The Vikings divided their country up into cantons which were subdivided into twelve portions each under a chieftain When a malefactor was brought to justice it was usual for each chieftain to select a man from the district over which he ruled and compel him to try the prisoner the verdict of these twelve men being declared by the judge to be final

ANCIENT DISEASE.

Smallpox First Described by Arabs In Sixth Century

The literary as well as the pathologic history of smallpox presents many items of very special interest All readers of the clouded annals of the Middle Ages are acquainted with the fact that Arabian writers were for many centuries the recognized apostles of philosophy and physical science—including the sundry departments of medicine and surgery—to the various nations of western Europe And it is to one of these, Abu Bekker Mohammed ben Zechariah (A D 850 932), the earliest and most original of all the great Moslem physicians that medical science and medical literature are indebted for the first recognition of smallpox as a distinct disease and its first description in written language This venerable authority is generally known to posterity as Rhazes a name which he derived from Rai the place of his birth His original description of this formidable disease has been made familiar to English inquirers through the medium of Dr Greenhill's translation In addition to his observations on disease proper the powers of observation of Rhazes in physiognomy are demonstrated by such items of information as "A man with large ears is stupid, but long lived," and in rational therapeutics by his recommendation of the practice of the game of chess as a cure for melancholia The antiquity of smallpox is as might well be expected lost in the midst of ages but the definite statement has been made by Arab historians that it first appeared in the Abyssinian army of Abraha at the siege of Mecca in the course of the so called Elephant war of A D 569 (or 571) The legend is given as follows by one of their best historians Tabari "Thereupon came the birds of the sea in flocks, every one with three stones, in the claws two, and in the beak one, and they threw the stones upon them Wherever one of these stones struck there arose an evil wound and pustules all over At that time the smallpox first appeared and the bitter trees The stones undid them wholly Thereafter God sent a torrent which carried them away and swept them into the sea" Even one of the elephants having ventured within the sacred inclosures was struck by a stone and fell a victim to the smallpox Among the bitter plants which also appeared at that date for the first time the rue and colocynth are especially mentioned —American Medicine

Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy

Knew How to Describe It.

A newspaper woman in a New England town was sent to report an entertainment where amateurs sang, recited and did other stunts In her account of the affair the woman wrote

'Mrs Blank sang two solos with her usual nerve '

'See here called the editor, "you mean verve don't you?

'If you had heard the singing' said the woman reporter you would know that I wrote it correct.'

'But it will make Mrs Blank angry"

'Tell her that it was a typographical error That will appease her wrath and all who heard her efforts will commend the paper for its truthfulness

And so it was printed nerve"—New York Press

STEVENSON.

So Limp He Looked as Though Just Fished From the Sea.

He was tall, thin, spare—indeed, he struck me as almost fantastically spare I remember thinking that the station draft caught him like a torn leaf flowing at the end of a branch. His clothes hung about him as the clothes of a convalescent who has lost bulk and weight after long fever. He had on a jacket of brown velveteen—I cannot swear to the color, but that detail always comes back in the recalled picture—a flannel shirt, with a loose necktie bundled into a sailor's knot, somewhat fantastical trousers, though no doubt this effect was due in part to their limp amplitude about what seemed rather the thin green poles familiar in dahlia pots than the legs of a human creature He wore a straw hat that in its rear rim suggested forgetfulness on the part of its wearer, who had apparently, in sleep or heedlessness, treated it as a cloth cap These, however, were details in themselves trivial and were not consciously noted till later The long, narrow face, then almost sallow, with somewhat long, loose hair, that draggled from beneath the yellow straw hat well over the ears, along the dusky hollows of temple and cheek, was what immediately attracted attention But the extraordinariness of the impression was of a man who had just been rescued from the sea or a river Except for the fact that his clothes did not drip, that the long black locks hung limp, but not moist, and that the short velveteen jacket was disreputable, but not damp, this impression of a man just come or taken from the water was overwhelming —William Sharp in Pall Mall Magazine

The admission is to be 10 and 15 cents Mr. Welsh is a talented young man and the lecture promises to be entertaining and instructive. We should always respect any thing that is good, even though it be not of our own faith. It is too bad that people who take time to go to literary society or church do not find room inside. Boys, if you do not come in, you should be quiet, as the people inside should not be annoyed They are improving their time and preparing themselves for a bright and happy future. They are making men and women out of themselves that they may be prepared to fight the battles of life You are invited to join us. Come inside the next time

Our business men can send a letter to the county seat and receive a reply by return mail at 12 30 This change shows that the P O. Barnett's Store

Juliana Street, BEDFORD, PA.

Dress Goods This is Bedford's foremost dress goods store Foremost in style—foremost in variety and foremost in the economical pricing of the charming fall fabrics. Whatever is fashionable can be found here. The stock has been selected with a view of meeting every want. Variety is immense and in the widest possible price range. From the lowest priced fabrics to the very finest. If you can find better goods than ours, or lower prices for goods of the same quality, we should like to know it. You may be sure it will be a genuine surprise to us.

The present is with us, the future before us. Within a short time the holiday season will be here; the time at which perhaps above all others the purse-strings of the great American public are looser than at any other time. Now is the time to prepare for the holiday gifts. Now is the time to see that you are well supplied with all those articles necessary to make those around you happy.

Carpets, Mattings and Rugs

Carpets cost a heap of money—too much for you to afford to buy an inferior grade even at a few cents less in price. But there is one kind of carpet we believe you can afford to own. It's a first class, closely woven velvet carpet, and it has but a second class price here, $1.00 a yard. You'll not realize to what a degree of perfection the American manufacturer has brought the art of rug making until you see this assembly of room rugs. The color schemes evidence the taste of the artist, while the ingenuity of the clever artisan is also well portrayed. A particularly desirable point about these rugs of domestic manufacture is that you can find sizes to fit any size space desired.

Dolls To-day the new dolls, a week or so earlier than in other years, but mothers have been asking us to put them out early so they can get them dressed in time for Christmas, and here they are to-day freshly embarked from the old country. Bring the little ones in to see them.

Hosiery Up-to-date, serviceable and comfortable hosiery for women and children at prices which are appealing because they are economical.

New Fruits Prunes, Raisins, Peaches, Apricots, Currants, Figs, Dates and Citron are coming in now, and housekeepers can feel assured that they are buying the new crop at right prices.

Linens Linens That Are Linen.—Absolute security and pronounced satisfaction at all times buying linens here, because there is never the disappointment that comes when the cotton baseness is revealed at the laundering time. The linens we sell always improve with the washing.

Underwear Sneezing yet? Well, you will be shortly, if you are not now. Remedy? Our heavy and medium weight underwear, of course. It isn't safe to risk thin underwear these days—too many sudden changes in the weather.

Suits A shipment of suits for women has just arrived. Fashion's latest decree is stamped on every one in the lot; and here is where small profits cut a large figure. The customary 100 per cent. is not added to our suits. We are satisfied with a little profit.

Good Groceries It's the precaution we take against impure foods that makes housekeepers feel safe in buying here. Back of that are the lowest prices found anywhere.

Shoes, Felt Boots and Rubbers It's poor economy at this season to buy shoes that will let your feet get wet. Colds, coughs and general discomfort are the common results of wet feet. We sell shoes that we guarantee to keep the feet dry and comfortable. And the price is no higher than is asked for shoes that will do neither.

Budd's Shoes Boys and girls want style in their shoes just as much as grown up people, but still they must be built to endure severe service. The young feet are constantly in action—and fitting proportions are an important feature for growing feet. Our "Nature Shape" Shoe fills these requirements to the letter. Every parent should see them. Every boy and girl will like them.

Men try a pair of the old reliable Heywood Shoes the next time you need footwear. We firmly believe that there is no shoe equal to them for comfort and staying qualities. All leathers, $3 00.

Coats and Capes Some beautiful styles in this week at $7.50, $10.00 and $12.98. Handsome Kersey Capes 30 and 36 inches long, with strap trimming, $5.00. Also a beautiful line of children's coats from $1.98 to $8.00.

Warm Furs for cold days are what every lady needs. Would you like to wear nice furs this fall and winter? The days now may be warm but cold ones will surely come Have you seen our elegant line of Fur Scarfs? They are as fine as you will find, and such an assortment to select from. We begin with the lower priced, the Coney: Splendid values for the money; they are from 50c up to $4.00. Opossum, $5 00 to $18 00. Fox—the most popular fur, sells at $10.00 to $18 00.
